

VERNON PRESS

www.vernonpress.com

FLYPR12

12% DISCOUNT ONLINE
USE CODE AT CHECKOUT

$ 122

€ 105

£ 92

Edited by Lee Beavington, Adam Vincent

Poetic Inquiry Atlas

Vol 2: A Survey of Ecopoetics

SERIES IN EDUCATION

About the editors

Dr. Adam Vincent is an Associate Dean at Capilano University, poet, award-winning researcher and scholar who lives and works in the Fraser Valley of British Columbia. At the heart of his work is a commitment to "living poetically," a philosophy most often attributed to his late mentor, Carl Leggo, that bridges the pragmatic demands of teaching and academic leadership with the evocative depth of poetic inquiry. With a robust research background and a history in both editing and educational-creative writing, Adam's work focuses on the rhizomatic mapping of poetic inquiry as an epistemological imperative that spans institutional systems and the human experience. As an editor, co-editor, and contributor to the Poetic Inquiry Atlas series, he specializes in distilling complex qualitative truths into resonant, epistemological, poetic insights.

Dr. Lee Beavington, faculty member at Kwantlen Polytechnic University, is a recipient of the West Coast Teaching Excellence Award. He brings poetry into science labs, writes poetry as acts of resistance, and encourages his students to live poetically. As an ecologist, he finds poetry adept at elucidating the threads of human-nature interconnection. He coordinates KPU Wild Spaces, focused on ecological place-based education, and regularly takes students and colleagues into local geographies: salmon-spawning rivers, temperate rainforest, as well as the university campus grounds. His current research focuses on neuroinclusivity and decolonizing educational practices through storytelling and learner-centered pedagogy. Lee's poetic eye and expertise in ecology have helped to invigorate this volume of the Poetic Inquiry Atlas series.

Summary

This second volume in the 'Poetic Inquiry Atlas' series continues the mapping of the first edition by bringing together a collection that represents some of the diverse uses of ecopoetics across various fields of research and study and explores poetry as a form of environmental geography. With chapters from scholars from diverse ecosystems across the globe, this book highlights both generative and epistemological uses of Poetic Inquiry. Suitable for researchers, educators, poets, ecologists and those who wish to better understand the connection between humans and the world that we live in, this book adds to what is known about Poetic Inquiry, ecology, and about lived experiences in/with nature from both non-Indigenous and Indigenous poets and scholars alike.

Table of Figures

Foreword: Ecopoetics as Environmental Geography

Part 1. Environmental Ecologies

Chapter 1 The Singularity of Our Attention (or What is Poetry Good For?)

Chapter 2 The Poetry Effect: Lessons in Eco-Poetry for Troubled Times

Chapter 3 Connecting Eco-Literacy and Eco-Justice Education: An Ecopoetic Curriculum

Chapter 4 Rhythmanalysis and Ecologies

Chapter 5 Finding Photopoetic Flow with/in Water Geographies

Chapter 6 Peat, Diesel, and Seaweed: Poetic Inquiry in the Coastal Communities of Northwest Highlands of Scotland

Chapter 7 Storytelling and Poetry to Decolonize Educational Practice

Part 2. Environmental Perceptions

Chapter 8 Ecopoetic Prompts from the Depths

Chapter 9 Uncovering Multispecies Voices Through Poetic Inquiry

Chapter 10 A Bear, A Cornerrib, and the Children's Park: Mapping a Poem through Poetic Inquiry

Chapter 11 A Landscape Dancer's Notes: Listening and Responding to the Rhythms of the Land

Chapter 12 From Commodity to Community Relations with and for Water

Chapter 13 What is Wild and Scenic Enough: Poetic Inquiry into the Hydrosocial Framework of the Nolichucky River

Chapter 14 Kinship and Sound

Appendix 1. Full Poems from 'Poetic Inquiry into Rhythms and Ecologies'

Notes on this Volume's Co-Editors and the Series Notes on Contributors (in order of appearance)

Index

January 2027 | Hardback 236x160mm | 284 Pages | ISBN: 979-8-2616-0103-6

SUBJECTS Art, Language and Linguistics, Interdisciplinary

VIEW/ORDER ONLINE AT vernonpress.com/book/2624

